

Looking For A Used Piano? Then Keep Looking, Nothing To See Here

People are always looking for a bargain and pianos are no different. However, bargain hunting for a piano doesn't always work simply because it is a major investment. While looking for a great deal is always a good idea you also need to keep in mind you also need quality. It's a good idea to buy from an "authorized piano store". That is why a store that specializes has a great advantage over a general music store. A specialty store has greater selection of pianos versus a general music store because a general music store has only a small selection of pianos to choose from. Where as a specialty store has the variety needed. At a specialty store, you will find brand names like Kimball's, Story and Clark to Kawai, at these types of stores a player will find a piano that is best suited for them. Some of the more top of the line pianos are: Fazioli...these are the more unusual of the specialty pianos. And the price reflects the quality of the piano. Steinway...is thought of as one of the most popular of pianos. The best known and most expensive of the Steinway pianos was the Alma-Tadema. Mason & Hamlin...while a well-crafted piano, the prices are not as high as the Fazioli or the Steinway. Kawai...is a popular piano manufacturer that the prices range from ten thousand dollars up to a little over one hundred thousand dollars. Yamaha...is most known for this sound and the quality. With specialty stores, the customer service personnel will be better to answer questions more in depth than what you find in a general music store. This is simply because these are people who probably play the piano themselves. With this, the person who is in charge of the store is most likely able to tune, and repair the piano when it needs it at a reasonable price. If you are up to doing a bit of searching you can find a great deal online. Take for instance electronic keyboards. They have grown in popularity over the years. Top of the line keyboards are "Yamaha Tyros 2, KorgPA 2x Pro, and Yamaha Motif XS". The cheapest place to find these types of keyboards would probably be online auction places like E-Bay. However, be on the lookout for scams. The current scam is the "Yamaha Tyros 3 on E-Bay". Reason: this keyboard isn't out yet. Now those were the top of the line keyboards; however, there are many others to choose from such as Casio, Ketron, Korg, Roland, Technics, and Yamaha. Online auction houses just take a little time and patience to get the keyboard that you desire. Just be careful not to be a victim of a scam.
